

Old Spot Trust goes on line! – 5 February 2008

County-based charitable trust, The Old Spot Trust, has gone on-line thanks to two of its generous supporters.

When the Trust needed a website, Michael and Victoria Portch, offered to give up their spare time to build one for them – and the website is now up and running at www.oldspottrust.co.uk

Michael and Victoria, who live near Tewkesbury, have built other websites in the past and as people who work in Gloucestershire, decided The Old Spot Trust was a local good cause worth supporting.

The website features a variety of information – from what the Trust does to how to contact it and from the responsibilities of the Trustees to a list of forthcoming fundraising events.

Chair of the Trustees, Rob Ayland, said he was delighted with Michael and Victoria's support.

'We knew we needed to have a website as that's a really important way to let local and people and businesses know what we do,' he said.

'However, although we had all the information, none of the Trustees had the skills to publish it. We were delighted when Michael and Victoria offered to help and had great pleasure in taking up their kind offer.'
